

It's true! The COVID-19 numbers are going down, down, down

New local cases of the coronavirus are being reported every day, but the fact is, as February wound down, the number of new daily cases had dropped by 50 percent and hospitalizations were trending downward as well.

The daily average of new positive tests in Harrison County had dropped to 53.67 cases a day by mid-February, down from an average of 109.71 a day two weeks earlier.

The Mississippi State Department of Health reported that 449,815 vaccinations had been given as of Feb. 17 date. Among the sites in Biloxi were the Coast Coliseum and Walmart Super Center on C.T. Switzer Sr. Drive in West Biloxi.

"COVID vaccinations are now the light at the end of the tunnel," Mayor Andrew "FoFo" Gilich told online State of the City audiences in mid-February. "But we continue to look at the number of new positive tests, and the number of hospitalizations during any decision making process."

In other words, remain vigilant.

Voters in four wards to vote on council seats

It's municipal election year in Biloxi, and four of the seven City Council seats are being contested in the upcoming April 6 party primaries.

Incumbent Mayor Andrew "FoFo" Gilich and Councilmembers Dixie Newman of Ward 3 and Nathan Barrett of Ward 7 face no opposition in the upcoming elections, but party primaries will be conducted in four contested Republican races: Wards 1, 4, 5, and 6.

Three Republicans will be on the ballot in Ward 1, and two in Wards 4, 5 and 6. Nominees chosen in the primaries and independent candidates will face off in the June 8 general election.

Generally speaking, Clark Griffith is true blue

“What does that mean, in-famous?” Dusty Bottoms said to amigo Ned Nederlander in “The Three Amigos!”

“Oh, Dusty,” Ned said, “In-famous is when you’re MORE than famous. This man El Guapo, he’s not just famous, he’s IN-famous.”

That brings us to “Brigadier” General. “Oh, Nick,” Ned might say. “That’s not just a general, it’s a Brigadier General, which is more than a General.”

And that brings us to Clark Griffith, the Air Force veteran, the civic leader, the former City Councilman, the former “Brigadier” General, and the retired (and current) three-star general (that’s far more than a Brigadier General).

Clark, who was unceremoniously stripped of a couple of stars in this space last month, was kind enough to laugh off the miscue, but it reminds us of just how cool of a Citizen he’s been over the years.

Here’s a guy who in a decorated 35-year Air Force career has commanded at every level, from tactical fighter squadrons all the way up to vice commander of the Air Force’s Air Education & Training Command. Seriously, 4,700 hours as a command pilot, including 280 combat missions in Vietnam, serving across the country and around the world, and when it came time to retire, he found himself in Biloxi.

As with so many military retirees – about 7,000 in Biloxi, by some counts – Clark and his wife Jean decided to take up house in Biloxi.

Over the years, civic and community leaders have pressed into service more than once, a mission he gladly accepted.

Tommy Munro – the venerable Biloxi booster and a general himself in the Mississippi National Guard – recruited Clark as one of the original members of the Biloxi Bay Businessmen’s Club, which morphed into the Biloxi Bay Area Chamber of Commerce we have today.

The nom de plume Nick L. Shrimp is a homage to the late Walter Fountain, original olde crab, longtime editor of the Biloxi-D’Iberville Press, and longtime Biloxi Chamber of Commerce manager.

Saluting Clark Griffith: Patriot and all-around good guy. And yes, those are three stars on that cap.

“Here, put this on your truck,” Tommy Munro said as he handed a “Things are Brighter in Biloxi” bumper sticker to Clark one day back in the ‘80s. “I said ‘Yes, sir,’” the general says today with a smile.

Clark Griffith was born in Gadsden, Ala., a community that honored him years ago just as his adopted hometown, Biloxi, named him Outstanding Citizen and Volunteer of the Year and a host of other accolades it pains him to read on this page.

But it’s his no-nonsense, common-sense demeanor that distinguishes him.

When issues were challenging, Clark would lean on that modest upbringing: He would look at the person across the table and say, “Look, I need you to put that in ‘farmer’ to me.”

During his time on the City Council, Clark, always an engaged supporter of Keesler, was not afraid to take a position.

After the White House hotel, just down the street from Keesler’s main gate, had sat dilapidated for years, Clark suggested the city give owners at the time an ultimatum: Bring it up to code, get something going, or we’ll tear it down.

Through the years, mayors and governors had also pressed him into service on Keesler issues, especially to help tell the Keesler story in an environment of military cutbacks, named BRAC, the Base Realignment and Closure Commission that sends a chill at local city halls when members are in town.

Clark cautioned leaders of development near Air Force bases, especially high-rise development that could jeopardize the base’s flying mission. Losing any of the base’s three primary missions – electronics training, medical or flying – would make the base “a wounded duck,” Griffith used to say, “and a wounded duck is easy to kill.”

Another time, as Clark was about to enter a debate over an issue, he told insiders about the facts he planned to use to win his argument. “What you do,” he said with a sly smile, “is you show them the knife before you poke them with it.”

In the aftermath of Katrina, as swaths of the city’s neighborhoods and the Biloxi economy were devastated, Mayor A.J. Holloway turned to Clark to help lead a planning effort to rebuild Biloxi.

Once again, he answered the call, just as he did countless times, either in uniform or in civvies.

That’s the great thing about Clark Griffith. He’s always there. Always dependable and a man up to any task, generally speaking.

Let there be light: The city is expected to soon repair lights on the Popp's Ferry Bridge. Seven of the 21 lights on the two-lane bridge are out. Meantime, at the Point Cadet fishing bridge, repairs also are in the works for lighting there.

Crossed out: It's official, the CSX rail crossings at Nixon and Dorries streets in East Biloxi have been closed and a closure at Delauney is in the offing. The three closures of the 21 crossings in the two-mile stretch between Keesler and Point Cadet are to allow a new crossing as part of the Popp's Ferry Road extension in West Biloxi.

Popp's Ferry: Speaking of the Popp's Ferry extension from Pass Road to U.S. 90, the city has acquired necessary rights of way. The search for federal funding for construction – about $8 million – continues.

Seeking applicants: The city is seeking qualified applicants for a host of positions: laborers, maintenance workers, GIS technicians, electricians, dispatchers, lifeguards, a network engineer and even a Director of Engineering. The positions come with a robust benefits package. For details, click on the Human Resources link on the city website or call HR at 228-435-6259.

Youth sports: Biloxi Youth Baseball and Softball is set to begin practice on March 1 with games tentatively scheduled to begin March 22 at the A. J. Holloway Sports Complex. Registration has closed and safety protocols and guidelines will be in place during every practice and game. Visit the sports page on the city's website, biloxi.ms.us, for details.

Biloxi Water Department marches on Things may be on the move in March for the Biloxi Water Department. Staffers are set to move into their new digs, the former Mississippi Power location at Esters and Reynoir, sometime in March. And if all goes well, the decrease in the Harrison County Utility Authority charge on your monthly water bill is supposed to be reflected in the March bills. Look for the HCUA line on the bill to drop by 50 cents for each thousand gallons on water used. The bills will be marked to note the decrease.

Mayor Andrew "FoFo" Gilich, in his State of the City presentation the other day, noted the interest in downtown Biloxi since Howard Avenue opened as a brick two-way thoroughfare. Who are we to argue? Crisis line provides support to Veterans around the clock

By Bryan C. Matthews
Director, Gulf Coast Veterans
Health Care System

While all of us have seen numbers on our television or mobile device screens over this past year – numbers of COVID-19 cases, numbers of those vaccinated, and numbers of those who have succumbed to this terrible illness – there are other numbers the Veterans Health Administration (VHA) tracks, and one in particular which my staff and I will always put first.

Bryan C. Matthews

Twenty. That's the number of individuals who have worn the cloth of our great nation who take their own lives each day, and that's a number that Gulf Coast Veterans Health Care System (GCVHCS) employees – many of them Veterans themselves – are dedicated to erasing. And during these trying times when so many of us continue seeing numbers that shock and seem never to end, the stress and feelings of hopelessness and despair can have a significant impact on our Veterans, some of whom have a limited support network.

Biloxi VA TODAY

One of the methods the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has established is the Veterans Crisis Line, a free, confidential, 24-hour hotline for Veterans and their families or friends. Since its launch, the Veterans Crisis Line has answered more than 1.25 million calls and made more than 39,000 lifesaving rescues. To reach someone right away, Veterans can dial 1-800-273-8255 and speak with someone. Veterans can also send a text message to 838255 or start an online chat, veteranscrisisline.net, with individuals dedicated to helping our nation's heroes through difficult times.

Learning and watching for signs of concerning behavior can help Veterans and their loved ones get help. Feelings of hopelessness, anxiety, agitation, sleeplessness, mood swings, or withdrawal from family and friends can indicate that a Veteran might be experiencing some issues. If you observe a Veteran demonstrating these traits, start a conversation with them. Listen, express concern, reassure the Veteran, and ask if they have access to anything that could harm them, and call for help if you feel the situation is dangerous. Then get the Veteran help; the Veterans Crisis Line can be reached at 1-800-273-8255, or if you feel the situation is difficult, take the individual to the closest emergency room or call for help.

Our Veterans are our primary concern, and our employees have all taken an oath to provide these heroes medical care with integrity, compassion, advocacy, respect, and excellence. During these times of great stress, I encourage each one of you to check in on the Veterans you know, reach out to them and tell them that they are appreciated – gestures such as these are sometimes more appreciated than we can understand.

As always, please know that we are continuing to place our Gulf Coast area Veterans first; we are dedicated to our mission and our community and remain honored to serve our Veterans and the great city of Biloxi.

This monthly column and the 15-minute program airing daily at 6:45 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. on BTV are created by the Gulf Coast Veterans Health Care System manager.

FEMA meets with city about Zeta repairs

The time-consuming process of making federally funded repairs to city facilities has begun, says Biloxi Chief Administrative Officer Mike Leonard.

In fact, Leonard reports, repairs have been ordered to begin at some facilities, such as MGM Park, U.S. 90 elevated pedestrian cross walks, and at the Point Cadet Marina offices.

Leonard and key city department and division managers met with FEMA representatives in February to discuss the scope of repairs to city buildings and facilities.

"Subsequently we completed the detailed damage inventory and provided it to FEMA," Leonard said. "We have grouped all damages into 20 projects and have selectively begun the repairs. On some facilities, such as the Biloxi Visitors Center, we await final insurance proof of loss determinations."

One of biggest federal reimbursements to the city, of course, will be the bill for debris removal, an effort that says 300,000 cubic yards of debris was hauled away. The price tag: More than $4 million. Typically, FEMA pays 75 percent of the tab and the state pays 12.5 percent, with the remaining 12.5 percent paid by the city.

Said Leonard: "Our debris contractor is long gone, and our city crews are working now on the remaining debris, which is mostly fence parts."

For traffic updates, text BILOXI to 888-777

Dear Resident:

You have received this letter because your property is in an area that has flooded several times. The City of Biloxi is concerned about repetitive flooding and has an active program to help you protect yourself and your structure from future flooding. Here are some things you can do:

- 1. Check with the Building Division on the extent of past flooding in your area. Our Floodplain Administrator can tell you about the causes of repetitive flooding, what the City is doing about it, and what would be an appropriate flood protection level. Our Building Inspectors can visit your property to discuss flood protection alternatives.
- 2. Prepare for flooding by doing the following:
 - Know how to shut off the electricity and gas to your house when a flood comes.
 - Make a list of emergency numbers and identify a safe place to go.
 - Make a household inventory, especially of contents.
 - Put insurance policies, valuable papers, medicine, etc. in a safe place.
 - Collect and put cleaning supplies, camera, waterproof boots, etc. in a handy place.
 - Develop a disaster response plan – See the Red Cross' website: www.redcross.org/services/disaster/ for a copy of the brochure "Your Family Disaster Plan."
 - Get a copy of "Repairing Your Flooded Home" available within the Building Division.
- 3. Consider some permanent flood protection measures.
 - Mark your fuse or breaker box to show the circuits to the floodable areas. Turning off the power can reduce property damage and save lives.
 - Consider elevating your house above flood levels.
 - Check your house for water entry points.
 - Install a floor drain plug, standpipe, overhead sewer, or sewer backup valve to prevent sewer backup flooding.
 - More information can be found in the "Homeowner's Guide to Retrofitting: Six Ways to Protect Your House from Flooding" available in the Building Division or visit www.fema.gov/hazards/floods/lib312.shtm
 - Be aware that some flood protection measures may need a building permit and other flood protection measures may not be safe for your type of structure, so be sure to check with the Building Division.
- 4. Visit the Building Division for information on financial assistance in terms of a flood insurance policy.
 - Get a flood insurance policy – it will help pay for repairs after a flood and, in some cases, it will help pay the costs of elevating a substantially damaged building.
- 5. Flood Insurance.
 - Homeowner's insurance policies DO NOT cover damage from floods. However, because the City of Biloxi participates in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), you can purchase a separate flood insurance policy. This flood insurance is backed by the Federal government and is available to everyone, even properties that have been flooded.
 - Any area that is NOT mapped as a Special Flood Hazard Area (SFHA) may qualify for a lower-cost Preferred Risk Policy.
 - The City of Biloxi participates in the NFIP's Community Rating System (CRS) and is at a Class 5. Therefore, all locations within a SFHA will receive a flood insurance premium reduction of 25% and all locations that are NOT within a SFHA will receive a flood insurance premium reduction of 10%.
 - Some people have purchased flood insurance because it was required by the bank for a mortgage or home improvement loan. Usually these policies only cover the building's structure and not the contents. Due to the flooding that happens in your area, there is usually more damage to the furniture and contents than there is to the structure. Be sure you have contents coverage.
 - Do not wait for the next flood to buy flood insurance protection. In most cases, there is a 30-day waiting period before the NFIP coverage takes effect.
 - Contact your insurance agent for more information on rates and coverage.

Please contact our office for more information.

BTV: Feasts for eyes, palate

BTV has a couple of feasts for March, another look at the documentary filmed in 1950s Biloxi and, in honor of St. Patrick's Day, a "Biloxi Cooks!" that focuses on Irish fare.

"Social Change in a Democracy," which the city acquired from the National Archives, discusses the values of the democratic way of life and how citizens can work to have laws enacted to protect their way of life.

The program has a fascinating look at Biloxi – video, no photos – from the 1950s, its waterfront and City Hall, community leaders and students of the day. In fact, this month-long airing of the program is designed to help identify locations and people on screen. (Did you spot someone or a locale? Email online@biloxi.ms.us)

Producers of the documentary chose Biloxi to serve as a backdrop for a typical community. A number of locals – students, fishermen, and city leaders of the time – make cameo appearances in the documentary, which, in a page ripped from today's headlines, tells the story of the community rallying to enact laws to protect local water quality and the livelihoods of local fishermen.

In March, the presentation airs each morning and evening at 8 on BTV and each afternoon at 2.

Meanwhile, connoisseur Renny Sherman has an Irish feast and a guest for this month's special edition of "Biloxi Cooks!" You can see the program each day at 7 a.m., 7 p.m. and 1 in the afternoon. Erin go braghl!

Hugo's

a Biloxi Tradition

Hugo Rungo and Jayne Mansfield

There are many traditions on the Coast, such as the seafood festival and Mardi Gras that includes a connection to food. Food is nutritious, it can comfort you, and it can bring back memories.

Now that our Mardi Gras season has ended and our yearn for king cakes subside, we enter into the Lenten season. Lent begins on the Wednesday after Mardi Gras, Ash Wednesday, and continues through to the day before Easter. It is a time when many focus on fasting or not eating as much and abstain from meat on Fridays. Often times, a local church fish fry or cheese pizza from a favorite restaurant would be the go-to for dinner.

Back in the Day

Before the days of "fast food," high school students looked forward to outings at popular gathering places after Friday night football games, when they would meet up with friends to eat, listen to music, and sometimes dance.

Back in the Day

By Jane Shambra

One very popular establishment in Biloxi's restaurant history is Hugo's. Founded by Hugo J. Rungo (1909-1993) in the 1950s, and said by some as the place where the French dressing-on-pizza craze originated, began in an alley and grew to be the favored spot for teenagers and families for decades.

The beginning

Mr. Hugo was not a native Biloxian nor an Italian. He was, in fact, born in New York City of Polish and German parents. While stationed at Keesler Field in Biloxi, he loved our area so much he decided to make the area home after his time in the military.

First, he worked as a "mixologist" for the Buena Vista, the Tivoli, and the Avalez hotels.

After some time of saving money, Mr. Hugo, observing no Italian restaurants in the area, opened a local eatery and named it Hugo's.

The pizza parlor

Pizza is what Hugo's is most remembered for. In those days, folks called it "pizza pie." Hugo's menu not only featured traditional Italian foods, such as pizza, spaghetti, and spumoni ice cream, it included breakfast, Mexican, Chinese, po-boys, and an assortment of local seafood options.

Mr. Hugo opened his first eatery in 1951 in the area between Howard Avenue and Jackson Street, where Merit Hospital now exists. He later moved to West Division Street and Porter Avenue.

In 1959, the Daily Herald newspaper advertised two locations: Hugo's Restaurant at Porter and Division and Hugo's Pizza Palace at Lameuse and Division. Hugo's Pizza Palace and Restaurant celebrated its formal opening on Saturday, March 21, 1959 and offered a new venue for parties and banquets.

In 1959, Hugo's specialties included Bar-B-Q, chili, and shrimp pizza which all had registered trademarks. He even had a catchy phrase, "Pizza is the Trend, Friend."

Although Mr. Hugo passed away in 1993, his restaurant stayed open until 2003. And, even though the building no longer stands, memories of pizza, good times, and dating at the restaurant are still remembered today!

Famous tradition

When going to a local restaurant, diners have two major decisions: Do you want your po-boy dressed and pressed? And, do you want French dressing with your pizza?

Many say the French dressing craze began at Hugo's. In fact, Mr. Hugo kept a bottle of French dressing on the tables. When Biloxi students would visit the restaurant after school, they would order a slice of pizza, and often add "liquid cheese" or French dressing on their pizza. When longtime Hugo's manager Hilda Ainsworth was asked about the craze, she was noted in an interview by saying "kids do weird things."

But did the craze really begin at Hugo's? This unusual eating tradition seems to have been born in the 1950s at Hugo's eatery: French dressing/Catalina dressing on pizza. There is no definitive day or person to give credit for our Coast tradition.

One story tells about a patron asking for a free add-on and received a squeeze bottle of dressing resulting in an amazing trend. Another storyteller relates that back-in-the-day some chefs got into an argument in Hugo's kitchen resulting in French dressing spread all over customers' pizzas. A third remembrance related a convincing story about this tradition to its beginning by Keesler airmen who frequented Hugo's on a regular basis. Finally, another version related the legend to airmen who requested liquid cheese for their pizza; thus, a squirt bottle of French dressing was offered and it was a success. And, a few thought the tradition began when someone asked for a free add-on to their pizza, and that's the only option that was available.

The memories

Memories of Hugo's pizza goes beyond the food. Mr. Hugo's patrons were not limited to locals. Famous celebrities often visited the eatery, including Jayne Mansfield, Pete Fountain, and even Elvis Presley. And, the memories go beyond food and famous personalities. Memories of pin ball machines which paid a nickel for each winning point, was a recollection.

The man

Mr. Hugo was not only a restaurateur but an avid supporter of local sports teams. Hugo's was a regular sponsor of bowling, softball, and golfing teams. Often, Mr. Hugo was recognized for organizing tournaments which would benefit worthy causes for the needs of children in the community.

Mr. Hugo Rungo passed away in 1993 at the age of 83. Even though his building is no longer standing, the famous home-made pizza with French dressing tradition continues and so do the smiling reminiscent memories of days gone by. Pizza parlors across the Coast to this day often offer the add-on on tables and ask patrons if they wish to include this soothing liquid to their pizza order.

Bonne appetite, y'all!

The survey

A casual informal survey recently reflected the French dressing tradition and memories of Hugo's.

- Many Biloxi natives that were surveyed were well aware of the custom. A few surveyors even mentioned its liking to Catalina dressing.
- Almost everyone surveyed had at least tried the topping.
- About 15 percent of the participants had never heard of putting French dressing on pizza. These participants were mostly newcomers to this area. Those with no background on the subject found the suggestion of the add-on not palatable.
- 40 percent of the participants would not engage with French dressing on their pizza.
- Almost all responders attributed this custom to Hugo's, and all yearn for another establishment just like it. Everyone remembers Hugo's and where it was located, except the youngsters of today who only have oral histories shared by family memories to reply upon. Oh, and some participants had not and do not eat pizza, at all. Imagine that!
