FEBRUARY 2020

A compendium of what's happening in Biloxi

Biloxi
established 1839

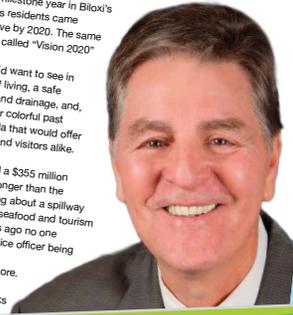

The state of our city

2020 has always been viewed as a milestone year in Biloxi's modern past. In the '80s, the city and its residents came together to create goals we could achieve by 2020. The same thing was done in the '90s, when a plan called "Vision 2020" was created.

They envisioned all the elements you'd want to see in a good, vibrant community: A low cost of living, a safe community, good schools, good streets and drainage, and, especially in Biloxi, an appreciation for our colorful past and our beautiful surroundings, a peninsula that would offer excellent waterfront access for residents and visitors alike.

And now, here we are in 2020. Of course, none of the plans envisioned a $355 million storm that spanned it. Nobody saw anything about a spillover in Louisiana causing the devastation of our seafood and tourism industries. And, of course, those many years ago no one would have fathomed the idea of a Biloxi police officer being ambushed in front of the police station.

But it all happened in 2019. All that and more. We saw tremendous progress on our streets and drainage work. We saw boardwalks provide better access to our waterfront. We kept the cost of living...

JANUARY 2020

A compendium of what's happening in Biloxi

Biloxi
established 1839

The beginning of the end

It was a quiet-yet-significant milestone just before Christmas when paving crews laid down the last stretch of base course of asphalt in the nearly 55 miles of infrastructure work north of the CSX railway. The work was at the north end of Forrest Avenue, the several blocks between Bayview and the Kessler gate at Meadows Drive. (The unpaved section at Division Street is part of the new Kessler gate, and a block-long section of Magnolia is a gas company issue.) Now, workers from Oscar Rendis Contracting will turn to finishing up driveways, sidewalks and landscaping throughout the overall work area, and they'll be videotaping sewer and drainage lines for final city inspections. Then, after all of the OKs, the final surface coat of asphalt will be applied to streets.

Let's paint the Town Green

St. Paddy's parade, Grillin' on the Green usher in Spring

By Laurie Rosetti

"Spring! Nature's way of saying 'Let's Party!'"

The late, great (and somewhat Irish) Robin Williams may have been visiting here when he came up with that one because Biloxians herald in springtime each year with a great Green party in a great green location, Biloxi's Town Green.

For 41 years, the Hibernia Marching Society has put the Blarney in Biloxi during its beloved St. Patrick's Day Parade. Southern barbecue and music joined the festivities in 2006 when Grillin' on the Green became an essential player in the daylong celebration. The whole shebang kicks-off with the Gulf Coast Running Club's Irish Derby 5K run. This year's revelry takes place on Saturday, March 14. 5K run begins at 9 a.m., festival hours 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. with parade at 2 p.m.

When delving into the long, storied history of the Hibernia Marching Society, the name of Dr. John O'Keefe emerges.

In 1978, through a Sun Herald article, Dr. O'Keefe extended an invitation to the first HMS planning meeting to all who were Irish or "wanted to be Irish," now magnanimous!

Before this first official meeting, several "unofficial" meetings took place at Mary Mahoney's Old French House Restaurant, where plans for a society and a parade were volleyed about. In '78, the crux of this organization was clarified: "the purpose of the Society is to promote interest in Irish Heritage and to develop a great appreciation for Irish Culture. Allied with these objectives is the desire to experience good fun and good fellowship among members of the Society who are Irish by birth, marriage or desire."

This year's parade captain, Jacob O'Keefe, assumes the duty for getting this 30-plus unit show on the road, literally. The parade lines up and begins at the Biloxi Yacht Club, meanders through downtown Biloxi, traveling northward on Lameuse Street to Biloxi City Hall, ultimately reaching Esters Boulevard where it disbands. This year's Grand Marshal, Chuck Kelly, and Colleen, Susan Cain Hinson, will fulfill their roles as official Hibernia Marching Society ambassadors when the streets of Biloxi once again turn green in celebration of Irish heritage. For more details on the parade, check out the official webpage at www.hiberniamarchingociety.com.

Getting your green on (so to speak) can work up quite an appetite! Enter Biloxi Main Street's barbecue competition, Grillin' On The Green, in its 14th year.

This free admission, food competition, arts and crafts festival, and music event begins the spring festival season on the Gulf Coast.

goers clamoring for the sizzling, grilled offerings, the barbecue aficionados just can't wait to get those grills smokin' hot.

Teams compete for five places in chicken, ribs and brisket and sell their delectables to the public. The ravenous parade lovers can find everything from pulled pork nachos to KC-style ribs to whole briskets, ready to take home for suppertime. The excitement builds all the way to the presentation of trophies, cash and the naming of the Grand Champion, which all takes place immediately following the parade.

This year's musical lineup is sure to set the perfect party atmosphere: Rhythm and Rain - 10 a.m., Unfazed Show Band - noon, and Ty Taylor and the Kinfolk - 3 p.m. More than a hundred artisans and retailers fill the Town Green space for those who love to browse and buy! The Kids' Zone will keep the young'uns happy and busy.
